When, alone I rove,
In the silent grove,
Beneath the pale star's ray,
Sweetly, in the vale,
Sings the nightingale,
As day-light fades away.
Tho' each tender tone,
Love might call its own,
Echoes softly thro' yon dell;
Ah! no sound so sweet,
This fond ear can greet,
Like thy voice, my blue-ey'd Nell!
My gentle, blue ey'd Nell!
